Please read the original article here. These six ideas may not be new, but for the first time, they have been compiled into a short, easy-to-consume article. Let's get started... 1. What about mindfulness? Should we stop thinking about it? "You are what you think," as the saying goes. Research has shown that our subconscious mind can be creative and creative minds – those seeking enlightenment and new opportunities – can be "out of their minds." The same has been found to be true when it comes to being mindful and conscious. Those engaged in a mindful awareness will find that their subconscious mind can be creative and creative minds can be engaged in a mindful awareness will find that their subconscious mind can be creative and creative minds can be creative and creative minds can be engaged in a mindful awareness will find that their subconscious mind can be creative and creative minds can be engaged in a did conscious. What does mindfulness do for you and your business? It means being aware of the positive and negative things you do, and those around you. It also means being aware of your impact on others. When we act consciously, we feel the impact that we have on others. It's all about making an active decision to take control of your life, your goals, your future and your business. You may have noticed that the more frequently you act consciously and mindful, the more you actually like yourself

The aim of the present study was to compare the effects of ramipril monotherapy and of a combination therapy with metformin and meglitinide on glucose homeostasis in non-insulin-dependent diabetes mellitus (NIDDM) patients. Twenty-eight NIDDM patients were enrolled in a clinical trial lasting 6 months. Eight patients (group A) were treated with ramipril (25 mg/day) only, nine (group B) were treated with a combination of metformin and meglitinide, and eleven patients (group C) were treated with metformin and meglitinide, and ramipril (25 mg/day). In group A, the serum fructosamine and the glycosylated hemoglobin were measured before and after 6 months of treatment. During the same period, in group C, only the glycosylated hemoglobin was evaluated. In group B, at the beginning and at the end of the study, the serum fructosamine and the glycosylated hemoglobin were determined together with the oral glucose tolerance test. In group A, both the serum fructosamine and the glycosylated hemoglobin decreased after 6 months of treatment (from 344+/-10 to 322+/-9 mg/dl, P
