The DAWN of the Elden Ring. An age of creation and discovery. A time of glory where legendary heroes of the previous age expanded the Elden Ring. The powers of the old Gods and the rites of magical energies flowed as the shards of the Lost Gods' power was contained in the divinities' final shards. As the shards were placed into the "Great Cross," a pact between the final three could seal away the Dark Gods of the previous age to protect the new Elden Ring from the power of the Dark Gods. However, even with the might of the Three, the power of the Dark Gods was too great. A power was seen within the Three that was unstoppable, a darkness that was not born of the other gods, a darkness that was forced upon them. As the power of the curse grew, the Three sought to make the darkness part of the world. The lower races were exterminated and mankind born of the remaining races in the world was brainwashed and controlled by the power of the Three, who birthed the concept of "Elden," as a final solution to the darkness forced upon them. The great heroes of the previous age assembled the Elden Ring in a final attempt to stop the Three. However, the Three possessed an overwhelming amount of strength. As the Three plotted to use the ritual of the Sundering to gate the power of the Light Gods, the heroes who had assembled the Elden Ring were forced to deploy a powerful defense force, the Nethergates. The forces of darkness blasted the gates as the heroes of the Elden Ring sacrificed their lives to protect the power of the Light Gods. Even as the heroes of the Elden Ring died, they could not die, but rather returned to the lands between, the lands of humanity. And this is the tale of the heroes of the new age of the Elden Ring.
